

Intervest appoints a new chief investment officer

Joël Gorsele enriches the management board with a solid international real estate experience

The supervisory board of Intervest Offices & Warehouses nv (hereinafter Intervest), public regulated real estate company active in the office segment and logistics real estate, has appointed Joël Gorsele as new chief investment officer, under the suspensive condition of approval by the FSMA.

Besides his training, Joël Gorsele also brings the necessary experience in the sector. He is known as pure-bred property expert with international experience. Until now he held the position as investment manager at Redevco Fund management, in the London office for several PanEuropean mandates. He came from Redevco Belgium and worked previously at Petercam (currently Degroof Petercam), Deloitte Real Estate and even earlier at Deloitte auditor.

He followed the real estate program at the Saïd Business School at the University of Oxford and obtained a master's in real estate management (MRE) at the Antwerp Management School and a master's in business economics at the KU Leuven (Brussels campus).

I am delighted to join a company that I have been following closely from the early start of my career, and which I have always admired for its entrepreneurship and focus on customer-oriented services. I am convinced that Intervest has a talented team, uniquely positioned by its strategy to capitalize on the future trends in real estate.

JOËL GORSELE
